

"Crossword Puzzle No. 1 In Black and White"

You've been sneaking around the restricted area of the museum for about an hour now, and you're getting really tired of indexing into a painting every time you need to open a door. Time to snoop around for a master keycard.

Your search brings you to the Restoration Room, where it appears an employee has been hard at work restoring this... strange-looking painting. You decide to give it a closer look – time is of the essence, sure, but you can't shake the feeling that this painting is missing something.

You also see two plaques next to the painting. They look a bit damaged, though.

As you stare at the painting, your eyes begin to drift... and happen to fall on a keycard, just sitting out on another desk! Perfect! Now, instead of solving puzzles to open doors, you can simply...

(For a copyable version of this crossword, click here.)